ecutive Council Allocates Money

occupied the minds of Council members as they spent $8,700 in general student funds and tighter restrictions on sites that use funds authorization.

money will go to the City basketball team in Philadelphia, and BYU will give $100 to the funds for the National Folk Dancers and Team ($3,000 each) provision that this be the r that student funds are funds without a CPO order. Hepworth has added reservations to his bill that allow last-minute approval from the vice presidents and allow appeal before Hepworth or the vice president involved.

Reed Halladay, vice president of social activities, said the program would avoid "spending money on the lower levels" where the vice presidents cannot check on funds.

Hepworth added that the council has been given the power to withhold funds from students that will not pay.

"Can't Do It"

"They'll have to understand they just can't do it," he said.

The treasurer also questioned the allocation of funds for corguettes on the grounds that a similar expenditure for a trip to the University of Texas at El Paso last year was turned down.

"This is three-fifths the same expense," he said, while recommending that the measure be tabled.

Camp Caldwell, athletic's vice president and sponsor of the bill, wanted to settle the matter now so that the corguettes could make plans for the tournament.

The bill passed unanimously after discussion.

Ken Kritchner, ASBYU president, said that the stipulation that this was to be the last year of ASBYU financing for the Folk Dancers was not realistic.

He understood that the matter of their funding would soon be discussed by the Administration. Ken noted that the Folk Dancers are becoming independent and that their funds should be handled by the University, not just the students.

No More Suspense As Lottery Clarified

By Neal Proctor
University Staff Writer

Hundreds of calls have been received by the BYU Selective Service office since Monday's draft lottery drawing, according to Lavar Rockwood, assistant dean of students.

The most frequently asked questions have concerned student deferments and the 19-year-old-first provision of the new Selective Service law, Rockwood reported.

The lottery will not affect student deferments, he said. A student will still be able to maintain his deferment if he completes at least 32 semester hours per year and carries at least 10 hours each semester.

A student would lose his deferment only if he dropped out of school or turned 24, Rockwood explained. He emphasized that the school can only send information to a draft board which a student requests, unless he graduates or drops out.

7178 Have Deferments

He said 7178 students here now have 2-S deferments.

A person's place in the draft order is determined by the lottery draw that occurs after he turns 19, regardless of whether he has a deferment.

If a student loses his deferment in the middle of a calendar year, he is placed in the draft pool by his local board according to his lottery number.

If his number has already been passed, he may be drafted as soon as he is needed.

If his number is not reached during that year he will no longer be vulnerable except in case of a major crisis.

Draft Call Decreasing

Although the 19-year-olds are generally drafted first under the system, a person with a deferment is treated as a 19-year-old the year his deferment ends.

The draft will not affect student deferments, he said. A student will still be able to maintain his deferment if he completes at least 32 semester hours per year and carries at least 10 hours each semester.

"It takes away the suspense," he added. "It's just a matter of time now."

"I might as well plan to be drafted," agreed Michael Hoffman, a sophomore in mechanical engineering who ranks 140.

"I'll keep my deferment until I graduate and then my number comes up, I'll go," he said.

"You win a few, you lose a few," commented Ray Erickson, a senior who drew number 93. "I'm not upset by it," he added.

Columnist-Author At Thursday Assembly

James J. Kilpatrick, well known newspaperman, will address the Forum assembly Thursday, Dec. 4.

The 10 a.m. address in the Fieldhouse will be followed by an address at the Temple Square Assembly Hall Thursday at 8 p.m. under sponsorship of the BYU Salt Lake Center.

Kilpatrick, a native Oklahoman and a graduate of the University of Missouri, began writing for newspapers at the age of five. He was copy boy for the Oklahoma City Times at 12 and a high school editor at 15.

He has written three books and edited two others. He won the University of Missouri's gold medal for distinguished service to journalism and the Sigma Delta Chi award for distinguished editorial writing. Kilpatrick also served for eight years as chairman of publications and vice chairman of Virginia's Commission on Constitutional Government.

In 1964, Kilpatrick began writing a nationally syndicated column, "A Conservative View."

It now appears in some 140 newspapers across the United States. From his office on Capitol Hill in Washington, he keeps a critical eye on Congress, the Supreme Court and the White House.

He is also a frequent contributor to several magazines and is an associate of National Review.

WORLD

THE HAGUE (AP)—The six nations of the European Common Market decided Tuesday to open negotiations with Britain and three other countries on their bids for membership.

A communiqué reporting this after a two-day session here mentioned no date for the start of the negotiations with Britain, Ireland, Denmark and Norway, but Premier Piet de Jong of the Netherlands said all members agreed the talks could start by the end of June.

OKINAWA (AP)—The Army announced Tuesday that all poisonous war gases will be removed from Okinawa to the United States beginning this month or January.

The Army declined to say how much of the chemical munitions was involved but said they include lethal GB and VX nerve gases as well as World War I vintage mustard gas.

Presumably many tons are involved. The Army said five shipments from the Pacific island would be required.

HONOLULU (AP)—Massive walls of water, rising up to 50 feet in some places, slammed into the island of Oahu Tuesday. Two persons were missing, police said.

The waves, spawned 1,500 miles away by a mid-Pacific storm, forced more than 500 to evacuate their homes in low-lying areas. Hospitals reported treating 15 persons for injuries, none of them major.

NATIONAL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Court of Military Appeals declined unanimously Tuesday to ban further interviews with witnesses or photographs of the alleged My Lai massacre in Vietnam.

The court, in an unsigned memorandum opinion, said the military judge who will try 1st Lt. William L. Calley Jr. has sufficient means to guarantee him a fair trial.

Calley has been charged in the slaying of 109 Vietnamese civilians in the My Lai incident of March 16, 1968. He is now at Ft. Benning, Ga., awaiting a court-martial.

SEATTLE (AP)—A new chapter in aviation—the age of the jumbo jet—was previewed today as a Boeing 747, capable of carrying nearly 500 passengers, took off for New York with 191 persons aboard. The flight was arranged to show off the $26 million, 626-mile-an-hour plane to 100 U.S. newsmen. Others on the trip were Bing and Federal Aviation Administration officials, and members of the crew.

The plane landed at Kennedy Airport at 2:30 p.m., slightly ahead of schedule.

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—The 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals today ordered three North Carolina and two Virginia school districts to desegregate their public schools completely within the next two months.

The court, over which Chief Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. presided for the first time since his rejection by the Senate for the Supreme Court, set deadlines of Dec. 31 for the North Carolina schools and Jan. 31, 1970 for the Virginia schools.

The school districts of Durham County and the cities of Reidsville and Statesville, N.C. and Amherst and Halifax counties in Virginia were ordered to eliminate racial characteristics by either pairing, zoning, or consolidating schools.

End Class Government

In the opinion of THE DAILY UNIVERSE, class government has outlived any usefulness at this university and the time has come for its abolishment.

The usefulness of class rule is emphasized with a small quiz. First of all, yesterday THE DAILY UNIVERSE carried pro and con arguments on the class government question. The "Pro" plan was signed by four men. Question: Who are those four men? The answer to that question is they are the four class presidents.

Since some of you sharp ones may have gotten that question, the next one will be a little harder: Which man is president of which class? The presidents again are Tom Parry, Dave Patton and Dave Ross.

Could you guess the correct order? In a random sampling, only three per cent of students polled could correctly identify the class president much less all of the class pres.

As has been pointed out, elimination of the government structure would in no way spell for all of the class functions such as the prom. Many of these activities are presently put to a large measure by "all-school" governments.

Class government is an archaic system which outlived its purpose. The time to do away with it has long since come and gone.

THE DAILY UNIVERSE urges a "NO" vote on the class government question on December 5, J. G.

"THE LINES"

Editor,

This morning I milled around is that a gaggle-like mass of humanity more inaccurately known as "the lines," which were for block seating ticket distribution. I wondered in amazement why no one with at least a small sense of organization and crowd handling experience had not stepped forward in time to rescue a busy student body from the throes of rank mismanagement.

Yes, I noted with some amusement, the few times that students emerged from their pauper of safety in the check room to clamorously announce to all, that "the Wilkinson Center had requested that we make room for people 'just passing through,'" and further, that "no more tickets would be handed out until everyone had formed only one line along the wall." The "people 'just passing through'" were continually crowding ahead of many of us who had been in line over an hour. The blame for this degenerate situation lies squarely on those "in charge." This letter is not written in the usual vein of "letters to the editor" which only criticize, but is also written to suggest alternative solutions to a problem that one.

I observe the cooperation of the Wilkinson Center management to route people "just passing through" around the hallway along the main ballroom. This reduces the congestion and confusion in the ticket distribution area. If this cooperation is unattainable, then I would suggest that a change in location would be very much in order, and that the general mode of operation outlined below be followed, with certain obvious changes.

2—Place a temporary barrier across the hallway, from the information desk to the glass wall bordering the East Patio. This will prevent "new arrivals" from crowding in and/or creating a congested condition in the vicinity of the ticket distribution area. These "new arrivals" can be effectively restrained and thrown into the main ballroom hallway to the back of the line.

3—Place four small tables inside the above mentioned temporary barrier to provide for four straight and distinct lines coming from the east; each line separated by a short rope barrier. This will help you in maintaining a semblance of order.

4—Each table should be adequately manned or closed down, so that one individual is not trying to handle more than one line at a time. This was one of the bottlenecks this morning.

5—with the ticket handlers behind each table, there should be adequate space provided between the tables to allow room for those obtaining their tickets to "trickle" through, avoiding the necessity of crowding and being shoved around just trying to leave. This reduces congestion and confusion.

6—The proportions should be made well in advance so as to be rendered effectively.

7—Enforce your rules without delaying argument. Even this can be done tactfully and yet not be time consuming. The student involved should respect you for your forthrightness, and all of the rest of us the back of the line will appreciate you for your speedy effectiveness.

REBUTTAL

Editor,

Dr. Richard D. Poll's address "The Happy Valley Syndrome" has started me to take pen in hand and offer this rebuttal. First of all let me qualify this by stating that I did not hear the speech, but gained what knowledge I have of it from reading the article in THE DAILY UNIVERSE on Nov. 20, 1969.

Dr. Poll makes a good point when he says that some saints hide behind their religion and fail to face life as it is. But when a person lives his life in accordance with the gospel of Jesus Christ and desires to live among people of this same persuasion, then I find nothing amiss in his life man who seeks his own happiness not suffering from a sync but is rather searching our best life.

Dr. Poll is also disturbed by Latter-day Saint's resistance to change. This seems to be growing cry of protest. I will not go into the priesthood. Get some revelations." Change in Church comes from God that the Prophet, not through Dr. Poll, Stuart Udall, or me. The Prophet tells us to change will do, even if we do not think that fast day used to be Thursday. If being resisted change means waiting for God to act, I will not do that. I am in it with all my power attributing a statement

President McKay caused people to support it, then relieved to know that at there are some who follow Prophet even when he disowns them. If this fact bothers Dr. Poll, I suggest that he take a look at himself and at his attitude toward God's mouthpiece on earth.

Young Promotes Work For Dead

Elder S. Dalworth Young, asking of genealogy in today's Devotional assembly, encouraged people to perform eulogies for someone which cannot perform themselves." Elder Young, senior president of the First Council of the city of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, has led a Central States Mission and was president of the Newland Mission from 1948 to 1951. Interested in youth, he has led for 22 years with the Boy Scouts and has written three books for young people. Those who don't do it (eulogy) think those who do genealogical crack-pots, but eulogy who do it get the spirit of it," Elder Young told the assembly concerning genealogy and work for the dead.

Elder Young said that it was the responsibility of all living to do the eulogy work for dead ancestors in order to save the spirits in the spirit prison who "by their own free agency... will have an opportunity to know that truth."

"But we do know that the Lord God is fair, his judgments just and everyone of us when he faces that Maker to be judged will have had a fair chance," asserted Elder Young.

Elder Young said that BYU students would soon have a temple here to do temple work, and that as they performed acts of love for the dead, the Lord would "put the Holy Ghost into your souls to understand, until someday you have perfect understanding."

Adding that through work for the dead, all the dead could be exalted and that the keys to that had been given to the Prophet Joseph Smith, he continued, "which keys you and I hold to do it."

Elder Young's speech was given after a presentation of the Archibald F. Bennett Award by The BYU Society for Local History and Genealogy to Archibald F. Bennett's widow in posthumous recognition of Bennett's unexcelled contributions and excellence in genealogy work in connection with Genealogy Week this week.

Musical 'JO' Will Open Dec. 4, Tells Story Of March Family

Charles Whitman, director of the BYU Theater Program, announced that the play, dated for Feb. 11-14 in the de Concert Hall, requires about characters. Oldtimers and youths alike should sign up at Drama Bulletin Board for a minute audition. A three to minute scene from a musical will be required of all auditioners. Written by Richard Nash and directed by Schenck, the musical was originally used on Broadway by David Wick as "The Rainmaker." Prof. Richard Ballou, director of the Symphonic Band, is the music director; Prof. Dee Werton, BYU Dance Dept., is choreographer; Prof. Charles on set designer; and Prof. Alan Williams is costume designer.

Calif., will play the title role of Jo. During the summer of 1968, she toured with a professional stock company, and this summer she took part in the UCLA Shakespearean Festival, playing the parts of Cordelia in "King Lear" and Bianca in "Taming of the Shrew."

The part of the eldest sister, Meg, will be played by Loretta Anderson. A native of Drama from San Jose, Calif., she has appeared in a number of other BYU productions including "The Sound of Music," "Macbeth" and "Lute Song." She says that this will probably be her last part for a while because rehearsals and looking after her 5-month-old daughter, Chandra, don't mix too well.

Amy March is portrayed by Lee Andrea Marlow, a junior in drama from Provo, Utah. She has performed in "Steel the World," "I Want to Get Off" at the Park Playhouse and next summer she will join the company at the Glendale Center Theater in California.

She joined with two other girls in high school to form a vocal trio called "The Sheratons" and last summer they toured the Caribbean with the BYU Program Bureau. They will perform at the Osaka World Fair next spring.

Beckie Davidson, a senior in drama from Salt Lake, plays Beth. From Provo, she is a member of BYU's "Theater in the Touring Repertory" Theater which was formed last year, she has also appeared in a number of plays and musicals including last year's BYU production of "The Fantasticks."

Beckie, who has been listed as one of the "outstanding young women of Utah," plans to make a career in the theater.

The musical will be directed by Prof. Max Golightly with choreography by Dee Werton.

Final Examination Notice Issued; Schedule Definite

Problems in final examination policy have been clarified by a statement by J. Elliot Cameron, dean of students.

Dean Cameron said that no teacher is authorized to complete any student's final examination before the officially scheduled time in the final examination week.

Any student missing the final examination must have a sufficient reason to gain the consent and approval of his instructor and dean of his college. An incomplete can then be given and removed later by examinations given within the official time limit for incompletes and a $3 fee payment.

If a student has more than three examinations in one day, he may contact the assistant dean of students for authorization for reduction in the number of exams in one day.

All other adjustments will be handled by the instructor and dean of the college in which the instructor teaches.

CALIFORNIA'S BOB WHITE, a 5'10" guard from Santa Maria, is counted on by Coach Jim Padgett to provide some experience at the guard position for the Golden Bears, who will be invading Provo for a two game series with the Cougars Friday night and Saturday night. Game time both nights is 8 p.m. and a near capacity crowd is expected to start the Cougar basketball season.

Cougars Open Season By Meeting Cal. Bears

By Bob Hudson
Ast. Sports Editor

Winning basketball has become a tradition at BYU and this season's version of the cougar squad hopes to continue it. The Cougars open the season with a pair of games with what seems to be an improved University of California quintet.

The Golden Bears will probably run a three-guard offense this season, relying upon quickness and speed for their points.

Against the taller Cougars the will find it necessary to score the fast shot as that is probably all they will get each time down the court.

Stan Watt's crew will probably start with 6'6" Scott Warner at center, 6'9" Paul Ruffner at forward, 6'7" Phil Tolleson, talented sophomore, at the other forward, and 6'4" Doug Howson and 6'5" Jim Miller, a defense whiz, at the guards.

Others who will probably see considerable action for the Cougars include 6'7" transfers Dick Dallalite and 6'4" guard Bob Davis.

Friday evening the BYU Kittens will provide excitement in the preliminary game with San Jose College at 6 p.m.

SURVIVALISTS LOOK OUT from Capitol Reef before descending to Water Pocketfall.

SURVIVALISTS DRINK their first water in a day and a half after traveling thirty miles to Snow Deer Rock in the Escalante Desert during course.

GEORGE DIXON EATS deer meat during the week of depending solely on the wilderness for food during one of the spring courses.

ARLEEN SCHRADER descends a mountain by "rappelling."

Nimimpu Club Conquers, Not Fears, Nature

"You don't have to be afraid of nature; you can conquer it," Ann Broadbent, a BYU junior, says after spending 26 days "surviving in the wilderness" this summer. Her remarks received a hearty amen from fellow survivors Glenn Langford and Rita Williams, a senior who endured the stint in a preceding group.

Ann, Glenn, and Rita are only three of the many who have ventured into the Escalante Desert in southeastern Utah over the past two-and-a-half years as part of the Youth Leadership 480 curriculum.

Participants are now organizing the Nimimpu Club, named from a Nez Perce Indian word meaning "we people" and "those honored, or leaders."

Under the direction of Larry D. Olsen, Youth Leadership 480 began as a rehabilitation program for BYU students on academic probation, but is now open to anyone without any severe physical handicaps.

Before his tenure as wilderness expert, Olsen has trained instructors from the academic "dropouts" sent to him for rehabilitation. One of the first "guinea pigs" was Ezekiel (Zeke) Sanchez, now back at BYU as a junior art major and assistant director of the program.

People like the concept that people who are academic dropouts are dropouts from society," Zeke says. "But they have potential because they got into BYU in the first place."

Besides teaching basic survival techniques, it is the program's purposes to exploit that potential, not only of academic suspensions, but of anyone who hopes to develop what one instructor, Paul Newmark, coined "faith in yourself, and faith in others."

Perhaps it's because of a "spirit of nature" that is "always with you," Ann describes it as a feeling of contentment. Participants feel "creative" because it is a "creative feeling." "You're so limited in what you can do out there," Glenn explained, "that you want to do everything worthwhile when you get back." Ann summed it up: "I feel like I could do anything I wanted to do. You do things you thought you could never do."

"Things you thought you could never do" begin when the participants set out with a limited supply of food, rationed to each survivor in packets. Divided into cooking groups, they quickly learn about "intertwining." "It diminishes pretty fast," Glenn remembers. "We had to share our food with each other. Ann recalls that the boys managed to squeeze three meals out of their packets while the girls only found enough food for two." The first week is one week when the group must depend upon the land to survive. The list of foods is surprisingly long. Ann rapidly ticked off fish, wild currants, thistle root, mushrooms, gooseberries and dandelion greens as staples of their wilderness diet.

Glenn tells of the snake, and mouse that the girls refused to eat, and the cactus, which she ate reluctantly, squawking and sagebrush.

The constant search for water in the 35-mile hikes in Rainy's a climb down a rock is Ann's group to what you could do.

The apex of the three-day "solo," participants left near water with limited food and spend time meditating and writing in their journals. They are all alone.

From the experience of being alone in the desert, "you learn about your life history, frustration of a lack of water, the survivor can acquire 'inward growth.' " When a person brings out nothing but the person sees himself as he tries again with the

Some people may find that their Christmas tree costs much more than usual if they try to cut their own tree illegally.

Anyone cutting trees on the Uinta National Forest this Christmas season will be guilty of a State and Federal offense and may be heavily fined.

No trees are offered for cutting this year because the only trees that could be cut without imparing watershed protection along the Wasatch Front or marrying the scenic beauty of canyon roads and trails are in the high country where they are inaccessible because of snow.

However, specific areas are offered for public tree-cutting by the Bureau of Land Management and the Manti-LaSal National Forest.

Voting Scheduled This Week For Winter Carnival Royalty

Who will be the first Miss Noel and Saint Nick — BYU's Winter Carnival "V" Christmas royalty?

Selected after two preliminary judgments are 12 students representative of the true spirit of Christmas. Finalists for Saint Nick are Kent Hunt, Kent Smith, Tom Draper, Jerry Meredith, Mike Coughran and Ron Nelson.

Competing for the title of Miss Noel are selected by Mary Jo Christensen, Sheri Heider, Marian Goddard, Judy Lenke, Marilyn Moody and Cheryl Stubbs.

Voting by the student body will be Thursday and Friday at various

'Circuit' Opens

BYU's Coffeehouse Circuit will open Thursday night at 8 p.m. in the Games Area of the Wilkinson Center, as the Smith Brothers Dart Band performs. Patterned after similar programs on eastern college campuses, the Circuit is the first of its kind in the intermountain states.

booths around the campus. Booths will also be erected near the Fieldhouse so students may vote before and after the forum assembly. The candidates will be introduced to the student body during the assembly.

The first judging was Monday night when 75 candidates brought cookies and original toy creations to be graded on their originality and appeal to children. Some of the toy ideas by Saint Nick candidates included a large cannon that exploded, puzzles, a pea shooter and a renovated ski. One Miss Noel candidate brought a candle sledge filled with gingerbread cookies and decorated Christmas cookies as her entry.

Entertaining for children at the BYU Nursery School was the second area of judging. Performing in costumes ranging from tin soldiers to play snowmen, the candidates sang, told stories and presented puppet shows to the three and four-year-old children.

Ken Karchner and Bill Hepworth will debate.

BIRTH OF BYU

From the "Provo Herald" of 1923: "BYU was founded Oct. 16, 1975. The first term of school was taught by Karl G. Maeser, during this term 69 students were registered. Two notable students who attended this first term were Senator Reed Smoot and Patrick Joseph B. Kedder."

have it. We're the most logical group for the last year," he concluded.

Academics vice president Brian Walton praised the Debate Team.

"They've done a tremendous job bringing tribute to BYU for forensic excellence," he stated, reporting that their funding had been cut from $9,000 two years ago to $3,000 this year.

Brian defended their use of funds by saying that they attended the best tournaments around the United States.

Stanford Competes

One of the leaders of the team reported that the group was the only BYU program with which Stanford would compete. The coast school's team would have to travel far to find a good tournament that BYU was not in, he said.

Hepworth reported that the Administration still owed the student body for last year's debate team funds.

The executive leaders finally voted the money with the realization that they push the Administration to pay its share.

In other action, the Council turned down an enlarged athletics ticket board, 5-4. Both of the Executive Council members presently on the committee against the measure.

Hyde Park

Ken Murdoch, executive director, explained that the House of Representatives of the Forum of the forum was devoted to the class of amendments to be voted on Thursday and Friday.

He said it will be a program with Karp Hepworth debating, president Davis Rose Smith—"a conversational microphone," according to Karp, while the program will be discussed.

RESOLUTION

From the "Y News" "Girls, would you rather be flashlight than a boy friend? Parent Teacher's Association small town in Idaho passed this resolution after readings: Resolution highlights a more useful and stormy night to a girl boyfriend."
